This Week in Wabash

Hello, Wabash,

Happy Thursday. I hope your week is coming along nicely. I also hope you had a chance to relax on Labor Day. A three-day weekend is always appreciated around my house. I've been enjoying the cooler weather. Our family has been taking it as a mission lately to visit as many new parks as we can while the weather is more tolerable than it has been recently.

This week, I wanted to let you know about a very interesting show taking place tonight, which I wrote about in Wednesday's paper.

“Assisted Living: The Musical” makes its way to Wabash at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 8 at Eagles Theatre.

“For more than a decade, sold-out audiences have laughed at the antics of 21st-century seniors partying at Pelican Roost, where 70-something is the new 20-something ... only with looser skin,” said Honeywell Arts & Entertainment digital marketing manager Kaitlynn Still. “The musical’s writers portray 18 characters as they romp through an active senior living complex in a show that the San Francisco Examiner called ‘wickedly funny.’

The show is “intended for mature audiences” and most seats are $20 and $30. Tickets are available by visiting www.honeywellarts.org or calling 260-563-1102.

During a recent phone interview, the show’s creators and stars, Rick Compton and Betsy Bennett, took the time to discuss the origins of the show and how the musical is breaking down misconceptions about Baby Boomers.

They seemed to have a very lighthearted take on growing older, which I thought was refreshing. Check out the show tonight if you're able. It sounds like a good one. Either way, check out the article.

Well, that's all I have for you today. I hope you have a great rest of your week.

Best,
Rob
